

WE NOMINATE

Eight of this community's most distinguished teacherscholars, all of whom are widely known in their areas of specialization and who together have served Princeton University and higher education for well over two an a half centuries. Two — both products of the Middle West — are classicists, two have been cited for their interpretations of English literature, one was linked with the late John von Neumann in the development of the "Theory of Games" in economics, another will long be remembered for his encyclopedic knowledge of the history of philosophy, one is a highly versatile Professor of the History of Architecture and the eighth a brilliant medicardist.

Whitney Jennings Oates, 66, first incumbent of the Avalon Foundation Protessorship in the Humanities, and Francis Richard Borroum Godolphin, 67, are both completing 43 years in the Department of the Classics. The former, a past President of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa, was the driving-force in the establishment of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Program, described as the "largest and most successful recruiting campaign in the history of American higher education," while the latter, fresh from "island hopping" across the Pactic with the World War II Marines, succeeded the legendary Christian Gauss as Dean of the College and guided Princeton through a difficult decade of adjustment.

In his quarter-century in Princeton Gerald Eades Bentley, 68, whose predecesors as Murray Professor of Englist Literature included Hemy van Dyke, has been involved in the preparation of a massive and definitive 7-solume work. The Jacobean and Cauoline Stage," covering one of the most tertile periods in the history of the English drama, the closing years of the Litzabethan Age, His retiring associate in English, Louis A. Landa, 68-year-old native of Texas, who was called to Princeton 24 years ago from the University of Chicago, is a student of 18th century literature and an authority on Jonathan Swilt.

One of this country's most respected economiss, Oskar Morgoneteri, 68, Class of 1913. Professor of Political Economy, came to Princeton in 1938 from his native Austria. He has combined public service in several countries with wide-ranging research in theoretical economics and econometries, including direction of Princeton's pioneering Econometrie Research Program, which he lamedred in 1948. Ledger Wood, 68, a 4-Syear Princeton veteran, chaired the Department of Philosophy from 1952 until 1960.

Donald Drew Eghert, 68, Howard Crosby Butler Memorial Protessor of the History of Architecture and a major figure in both the Department of Art and Archaeology and the School of Architecture and Urban Plauming, has spent his entire academic life at Princeton and steps down this month after 41 years of service. He plaxed a key role in the lounding of the Program in American Givilization. Twice a Fellow of the Institute for Advanced Study and for nearly three decades a teacher at the University of Wisconsin, Gaines Post, 68, joined the Princeton Department of History in 1964, two years before he was singled out for the Haskins Medal, the highest honor awarded by the Medieval Academy of America.

For their rich and diverse contributions to the intelle unal life of the University and the Princeton Community; for strengthening the profession of teaching and scholarship through their innovative approaches both in and beyond the classroom; for helping bridge the gap between the university campus and the world around it: they are TOWN TOPICS* nominees as

ROTC to End at Princeton

Accepting the recommendation of the faculty and the Council of the Princeton University Community, the trustees have decided that all ROTC programs at Princeton should cease by June, 1972.

Although student activists had been agitating for an end to ROTC for the last couple of years, the idea really gained momentum in May, following the entrance of American troops into Cambodia, with both the council and the faculty volum to seek ways to terminate the military program.

- 1. It is not harmonious with its surroundings or the character of Princeton.
- Any extensive building in this particular area may not be ecologically sound because of the solid rock base that runs through the northern area of Princeton and any extensive building and clearing may effect the ability of the thin top soil to hold water.
- 3. It is reported that the proposed building will bring $105,000 in taxes. This comes to a tax relief of approximately $12 per tax payer per year, not considering the services that must be provided.

b) Putting though the J Road and "impoving" the Mt. Lucas

In the past, such spot zoning developments have actually cost more in city provided services than the tax relief they provided.

- The additional 1,000 cars that this, and other proposed projects like it, will further burden the already critical traffic problem.
- 5. The proposed building site lies in or near the aircraft traffic pattern of the Princeton Airport, Draw your own conclusions,
- 6. We think that if this building is erected it will set a precedent which can, and most likely will change Princeton into a commercial con-

To: The Princeton Township Committee and the Environmental Design Review Board.

We citizens of Princeton protest the proposed construction of the twelve-story office building at Mt. Lucas and Herrontown Roads.

We urge you to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent this construction and o foreclose the possibility of any other construction which will similarly endanger the quality which is now Princeton's.

As of July 1, all six New Jersey National Bank savings plans will earn interest compounded daily. Also, each plan pays you the highest interest rate offered by any full service bank.

Simply select the plan that suits your savings goals:

- Regular Savings Account
- Golden Passbook Account (Optional tax saving deferred income feature)
- 3-Month Savings Certificate*
- 1-Year Savings Certificate*
- 2-Year Savings Certificate*
- Savings Bonds (Optional tax saving deferred income feature)

You're losing money if your savings are not earning interest compounded daily.

You'll also be glad to know our Regular Savings Account will pay you interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal beginning July 1. And here's another plus ... all regular savings deposits made by the 10th day of each quarter earn interest from the 1st. Most savings institutions begin a new interest period in July, so now's the best time to stop by and ask about our six plans. After all, why go on losing money?

*If you've purchased our savings certificates prior to the above date, they'll begin earning interest compounded daily the first renewal date after July 1.

THE USES AND MISUSES OF EXPERIENCE

Willard Dalrymple, M.D.

Director of Princeton University Health Services

"But look! I have the experience in life. I know whot is right and whot is best." Porent to child:

Child to porent:
"But look! This is my life. Today is different.
Whotever you or onyone else has experienced just isn't relevant."

Perhaps these exact words are not used by either genera-Perhaps these exact words are all used in yearner genera-tion hat the mixonderstanding which they represent con-tributes widely to the many disagreements between parents and children today. Since experience is often invoked or atlacked in inter-generational controversy, it may be valuable to investigate it here.

Experience does exist, does have importance, and may he relevant to the present and the future. Despite changes ing circumstances, human motives and human helavior romain remarkably similar — not predictable, perhaps, hut similar.

and similar.

The conflict between selfish and humanitarian motives persists (in radicals as well as in conservatives). Anxiely and the need to delend against anxiely determine many allituder and responses. In a thousand ways daily, human beings give each other signals about their desires and intentions, signals which perceptive people lears to recognize more and more with experience

Experience becomes important sol only in "managing" situations and people (a slightly unpleasant if necessary description, perhaps) and in anticipating likely (although not certain) outcomes of situations, but also in meeting the psychological and practical needs of other people and in avoiding doing them harm.

An obvious example exists in motor vehicle accidents. The high incidence of accidents among inexperienced young drivers is proven. Furthermore, some young drivers are much more adept than others in learning vicariously from the experience which other people have already had.

It is more difficult hot just as important to recognize It is more difficult holy just as important to recognize the importance of experience, whether direct or vicarious, in assessing and responding to situations which are pri-marily psychological. For example, in relationships bet-ween the sexes, the tremendous potential for hort and weren ne sexes, me tremenoous potential tot nort and disponinment as well as for joy and fulfillment is too eften ignored by homan beings. Failure to take into account human experience is an essential part of ignoring the potential.

Middle-aged or elderly people usually, though not necessarily, have more experience than younger people. If they can see this experience, again either direct or vicarious, as something which they have no obligation to pass on to their childrea and grandshidren rether than something which gives them a right to make decisions for the children and grandchildren, then they may be successful in making the experience useful to then

There are some guides which apply. First, the experience should not he reserved for epixodes of controversy or times of argument, to the trotted out as a suppossedly irrefutable hulwark to an adult position. Rather, a periodic introduction of the young person to the experience of the older transmits the events and knowledge as vicarious experience as well as creating a greater bond between the two generations.

Second, it useful for a man to say to his son, "Twenty-five years ago when I was in college, such and soch hap-pened to me. I think that your circumstances are similar in this way."

It is not inseful for him to say, "Twenty-live years ago such and such happened to me and therefore you must do the same as I did." The soo may have less experience, but he has an equal right to an opinion on the applicability to the present of what happened twenty-five years ago.

There are, of course, misuses of experience. Some people There are, of course, missure of experience. Some people me experience purely to reinfonalize their personal preferences. Take hoys' hair length, for example. The argument, expressed or implied, oflen stems to rim: "Boys were their hair short when I was young and I have found that leoks better that way. Therefore you must wear your hair short." This non sequitur often contributes to stiention. affection.

Experience may he claimed as the primary reason for authority or as the hasis for respect; in such cases, experience may become synonymous with age. Quite aside from there being other, more important, sources of authority (including parenthood), experience and age by themselves are weak bases for authority and even respect these days.

Knowledge, which is closely akin to experience, com-mands respect on its own. People who have the wisdom to ose knowledge and experience offectively command respect for themselves, but the knowledge and the people must not for intenserver, and the source was a like confused. Whenever possible, those holding authority and those to whom authority applies should agree not only on the existence of the authority and its extent but also on its derivation.

These comments on experience have not been exhaustive They have not discussed the very important lact that personality traits tend to determine to what extent an individual, young or old, will be guided by experience. They have not indicated how parents, teachers, declors, and other authority figures may use experience in different ways. They have not considered how and why some young people attribute all problems and difficulties to the young and old the assa and misoses of experience.

What is Christian Science?

It is a religion based on the words and works of Christ Jesus

It has helped many like you to prove in a measure the meaning of Christ Jesus' promise: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also."

It shows the scientific basis of Christianity and how to avail yourself of the laws of God in everyday life.

FOUR HOUSES THAT WON'T RUN YOU

Whether you're giving up a big house and hoping to consolidate, or are just longing for the case and convenience of one floor living, here, for you to consider, are four interesting houses in admirable Princeton locations:

ALLISON ROAD; elegant Western Borough setting. Comfortable 3 bedroom. 21/2 bath house, has broad entrance hall, living room with lireplace, separate dining room, study, modern kitchen with breaklast area. 2 car garage. Walk to all things Town and Gown. Very much available at CHERRY HILL ROAD: Amid towering shade trees and banks of pachysandra. a small, artistic house just made for a couple whose passions are gardening and enterlaining. Attractive entrance hall with bar; big. square living room with fireplace; wall of bookcases and door to the lerrace, formal dising room overlooking the garden, brick floored garden room with walls of glass, double quest room and bath and modern kitchen, all on ground floor. Up a few steps, is the most luxurious master bedroom suite in town with balconied glass wall lacing the woods. A lascinating house at $68,500.

ROSEDALE LANE: To us, this secluded private way in the Western Section of the Towaship is about as desirable a place to live as could be. Peacefully tucked away there, we have a most versatile house with linished lower floor, with sitting room, bedroom and 11/2 haths, that is perfect for the man who came to dinner. On the main living level, there are foyer, large living room with fireplace, hay windowed dining room with door to screened deck, pantry, kitchen, Iwo bedrooms and bath. Beautiful, new swimming pool. charming

ON WINANT ROAD: one of the most attractive locations in Edgerstoune, you'll find this most unusual, architect-designed house on a small, shady, easily-maintained lot. Inside, there's an entrance hall opening to an intriguing two level living-dining room with floors of dark-oak and waxed flagstone and walls of glass overlooking a secluded, fenced palio and leafy hack garden. The kitchen is new and a cook's delight, with plenty of space for a relaxed meal. There are 3 bedrooms, two on one side of the house and one, hy itself, on the other and 2 baths. Big utility room, usable, light basement. DIFFERENT AND APPEALING. $76,000

The difference between a dead-end cellar and a basement-for-living

Without direct access to the out of doors, your basement becomes a seldom used, dead-end area, instead of a "live", low-cost space for the enjoyment of your whole family. Basement Door costs so little when it's included in the foundation construction. With it, you will as much as double the living space of your new home! Let us show you how easily and inexpensively you can include a BILCO Door and Stair Stringers in your building plans.
